

Senior Researcher in Comparative / International Political Economy

as part of the Political Economy Project Area headed by Professor Lucio Baccaro

The Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies (MPIfG) is seeking a senior researcher in comparative / international political economy.

The successful candidate will be part of the Political Economy Project Area headed by Lucio Baccaro. For more information about the project area's research agenda, please go to www.mpifg.de/index_en.asp > Research.

Applicants are required to have completed a PhD in political science, sociology, or economics, and show a promise of excellence in their publication record. Excellent English is essential.

The successful applicant will have the opportunity to pursue a habilitation and to teach at the International Max Planck Research School on the Social and Political Constitution of the Economy (IMPRS-SPCE, imprs.mpifg.de). The position is for an initial three-year period with an option, following a successful evaluation, for another three years.

We offer excellent working conditions in an internationally oriented research institute. Pay and benefits are based on the German public sector pay agreement (TVöD-Bund).

The Max Planck Society aims to increase the share of women in academic positions. It supports all employees in achieving work and family life balance and has been certified by the "berufundfamilie" audit. We are committed to employing more handicapped individuals and explicitly encourage them to apply.

Please submit your application as a single PDF file at <https://jobs.mpifg.de> by October 31, 2018. Your application should include a cover letter, a 2-to-3-page project proposal, a CV, copies of your qualifications, a list of publications, a selected journal article, and the names and addresses of two referees.
